

Confidential

The case, referred to in the sensational story told in "the Sun" in its issue of 13th inst., or following date, is that of Thomas Cuthbert who was arraigned at the London County Sessions on April 1891, on a charge of maliciously wounding Florence Grace Johnson, attempting to wound Isabella Freer Anderson in Kensington. He was found to be insane, and sentenced to be detained during Her Majesty's pleasure.

This Cuthbert, who lived with his mother and aunt at 14 Albert St. Kensington, escaped from the Lambeth Asylum, (after he had been detained there as a few hours, as a lunatic) at noon on a 5th March 1891 - He was recaptured on 9th idem. A few weeks before this, several cases of stabbing, or "jabbing," girls behind had occurred in the vicinity, and a man named Colicott was arrested. The subsequently discharged owing to faulty identification. The cuts in the girls dresses made by Colicott were quite different - & the cut made by Cuthbert (when he wounded Miss Johnson) who was no doubt influenced by a wild desire of mortal imitation. Cuthbert's antecedents were examined into by Ch. Inspr. (now Sup. Chas.) G. Gepp, Dace, and by P.S. Neary C.I.D. (the last named officer had been specially employed in Whitechapel at the time of the murders there,) and it was ascertained that he was born, & had lived, in Kensington all his life. His father died when he was quite young, and he was always a "spoilt" child. He had been employed as a clerk, and traveller in the Tea trade at the Mincing, & subsequently canvassed for a Director in the East End, during which time he bore a good character. He apparently contracted syphilis after 1888, and, - since that time,- led an idle and useless life. His brain seems to have become affected, and he believed that people were trying to poison him. He wrote & Lord Grimthorpe, and others, - also to the Treasury, complaining of Dr. Brooks, of Westminster Bridge Rd., whom he threatened & shot for having supplied him with bad medicines. He is said to have studied radical books by day, & have gambled about at night, returning frequently with his clothes covered with mud; his little reliance could be placed on the statements made of his motives or his aims. The last appear to have been of a very executable disposition.

He was found unprovoked to resent his movements on the nights of the Whitechapel murders. He kept found on him 10s money & Horns-ditch after a week before he was detained in the dispensary. Cutlery was recovered of the late Sept execution.

Now the Whitechapel murderer had 5 victims. & 5 victims only, - his murders were (i) 31st Aug '88. Mary Ann Nichols, of Broad St. who was found with her throat cut, & with (slight) stomach mutilation

- (ii) 8th Sept. '88. Annie Chapman, - Hoxton St.
Throat cut. Small private parts half mutilated & some of the entrails placed round the neck.
(iii) 30th Sept '88. Elizabeth Stride. - Bow's street throat cut, but nothing in shape of mutilation attempted, ~~on same date~~ Petticoat Edmores. White Square, throat cut.

Very bad mutilation, both of face & stomach.
⁽¹⁰⁾ November. Mary Jane Kelly. Miller's Court throat cut, and the whole of the body mutilated in the most gory manner.

The last murder is the only one that took place in a room, and the murderer must have been at least 2 hours engaged. A photograph was taken of the woman, as she was found lying on the bed, without saying which it is impossible to imagine the awful mutilation.
With regard to the double murder which took place on 30th Sept., there is no doubt but that the man was disturbed by some persons who drove up to a Club, close to which the body of Elizabeth Stride was found) and that he then, 'horseshoe fashion', went in search of a further victim whom he found at White Square.

It will be noticed that the fury of the mutilations increased in each case, and, seemingly, the appetite of became sharper of indulgence. It seems, then, highly improbable that the murderer would have suddenly stopped in November '88, and have contented himself with merely prodding a girl behind some 2 years & 4 months afterwards. A much more rational theory is that the murderer's brain gave way altogether after his awful glut in Miller's Court, and that he immediately committed suicide, or, as a possible alternative, was found to be so hopeless and of his relations. That he was of course confined to Some asymp.

No one ever saw the Whitechapel murderer; many homicidal maniacs were suspected, but no shadow of proof could be thrown on any one. I may mention the cases of 3 men, any one of whom would have been more likely than Cut-throat to have committed this series of murders:-

(1) A Dr. W. J. Drunt, said to be a doctor & of good family, who disappeared at the time of the Thaddeus Court murder, whose body (which was said to have been disposed of in a trunk in the water) was found in the Thames on 31st Dec. - or about 7 weeks after that murder. He was kindly man and from private info. I have little doubt but that his own family believed him to have been the murderer.

(2) Kozminski, a Polish Jew, resident in Whitechapel. This man became infamous & many gross indulgence in filthy vices. He had a great hatred of women, specially in the prostitute class, and strong homicidal tendencies; he was removed to Brixton Asylum about March 1889. There were many circumstances connected with this man which made him a strong "suspect".

(3) Michael Ostrog, a Russian doctor, and a convict, who was subsequently detained in a lunatic asylum as a homicidal maniac. This man's antecedents were of the baser possible type, and his whereabouts at the time of the murders could never be ascertained.

And now with regard to few of the maccaries and misleading statements made of the "Pun." In its issue of 14th Sept., it is stated that the writer has in his possession a facsimile of the knife with which the murders were committed. This knife (which for some unexplained reason has, for the last 3 years, been kept by Mrs. Dace, instead of being sent to Prisoner's Property store) was traced, & was found to have been purchased in Horns-ditch in Feb. '91. or 2 years & 3 months after the Whitechapel murders ceased.

The statement, too, that Cuttriss spent a portion of the day in making rough drawings of the bodies of women, & of their mutilation is based solely on the fact that 2 scribble drawings of women in indecent postures were found torn up in Cuttriss' room. The head & body of one of these had been cut from some fashion plate, steps were added & drew a woman's naked thigh & pink stockings.

In the issue of 18th inst. it is said that a light wreath was among the things found in Cuttriss' house, and that a new & a light wreath was seen lying on the woman at Buckchurch Lane whose body with arms attached was found in Queen St. This is hopeless nonsense! On 10th Sept. '89 the naked body, with arms, of a woman was found wrapped in some bedding under a railway arch in Queen St. The head & legs were never found in the woman ever identified. She had been killed at least 24 hours before the remains (which had evidently been bought for a doctor, were discovered. The stomach was split up for a cut, and the head and legs had been severed in a manner identical with that of the woman whose remains were discovered in the Thames, & Battersea Park, & on the Chelsea Embankment a few days after the same year; and these murders had no connection whatever with the Whitechapel horrors. The Rainham mystery in 1887, & the Whitehall mystery (when portions of a woman's body were found under what was now Scotland Yard) in 1888 were of a similar type to the Thames & Ditchie St crimes.

It is perfectly untrue to say that Cuthbert stabbed 6 girls behind. This is confounding his case with that of Colicott.

The theory that the Whitechapel murderer was left-handed, or, at any rate, "ambidexter," had its origin in the remark made by a doctor who examined the corpse of one of the earliest victims; other doctors did not agree with him.

With regard to the 4 additional murders ascribed to the writer in the See of the Whitechapel fiend:—

- (1) The body of Martha Tabram, a prostitute was found on a common stair case in George Yard building on 7th August 1888; the body had been repeatedly pierced, probably with a bayonet. This woman had, with a fellow prostitute, been in company of 2 soldiers in the last part of the evening: these men were arrested, but the second prostitute failed on repeated, to identify, and the soldiers were accordingly discharged.

- (2) Miss McKenzie was found with her throat cut (or rather stabbed) in Little Alley on 17th July 1889; no evidence was forthcoming, and no arrests were made & no charges were brought in this case. The stab in the throat was of the same nature as in the case of the runner.
- (3) Frances (Mrs. in Swallow Gardens, n^o 13^f February 1891 - for which Thomas Sadler, a friend, was arrested, &, after several remands, discharged. Was exonerated at the time that Sadler had sailed for the Baltic on 19th July '89, & was in Whitechapel at the nights of 17th idem. He was a man of untrustworthy temper & habits, addicted to drink, & the company of the lowest prostitutes.
- (4) The case of the unidentified woman whose trunk was found in Pinchin St. on 10th Sept 1889 - which has already been dealt with.
